Course/Module description:

The course introduces the normative structure and theoretical foundations of Public International Law (PIL), alongside its institutional and procedural aspects. It also looks at the interplay between PIL and domestic legal systems, and between PIL and international relations, legal philosophy and political science.

A particular focus of the course is the relevance of PIL to the issues and challenges confronting the State of Israel. The State of Israel came into existence with the support of a UN Resolution (General Assembly Resolution 181 of 29 Nov. 1947) and has engaged extensively in several PIL instruments and arrangements. At the same time, much of the international criticism directed against Israel pertains to the conformity of its laws and policies with its obligations under PIL. The course shall therefore discuss some core issues in PIL and their significance to the State of Israel, in light and based upon the unique needs and history of Israel.

Course/Module aims:

Learning about PIL in general, and through the unique perspective of the State of Israel and its experience in the international realm.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

Students will be able to define and analyze the role of international law, and will acquire knowledge and be able to analyze central topics in contemporary international law, most specifically relating to the State of Israel.

Attendance requirements(%):

75%

Teaching arrangement and method of instruction: Students are required to view all classes that will be available on-line. In addition, students are expected to read the items assigned to each class in the reading list below, to submit weekly assignments based on their class viewing and the materials read, and to actively participate in the forum discussion moderated by Ms. Talila Devir, the course administrator.

Course/Module Content:

The course consists of four parts: the first part of the course will deal with the history of PIL, its normative foundations and the theoretical basis for compliance with its norms. The second part of the course will discuss some of the main actors and institutions that operate in the international sphere. The third part of the course will present selected issues in PIL: Acquisition of Territory under International Law, The Prohibition against the Use of Force, The Laws of International Humanitarian Law, The Laws of Occupation, International Human Rights Law, International Criminal Law, Universal jurisdiction and the ICC, International Economic Law and International Environmental Law. The fourth part of the course will offer a closer look into issues relating to PIL and Israel, including: Status of International Law under Israeli Law, The creation of the State of Israel and the Status of Palestine, The Status of Jerusalem and the Territories seized by Israel, The Middle East Peace Process, Israel's Wars under International Law, Israel's Asymmetric Armed Conflicts, Israel's immigration law and policy, Israel and International Criminal Law, Israel's Relations with Trade Blocks.
