Course/Module description:

During the course we will analyze the basic concepts of the Critique of Judgment, such as Nature and Freedom, theoretical and practical ways of thinking, determinate and reflexive judgments, aesthetics and teleology, subjective and objective meaning of the principle of Nature's purposiveness, the symbolic presentation of the aesthetic Idea and the organism, et cetera. We will clarify the systematic place of the third Critique in the whole of the critical project and try to explain why according to Kant it is aesthetics and not teleology should function as a bridge between two parts of philosophy.

We will also analyze the ways in which the basic concepts of the Critique of Judgment were transformed by the German Idealism as well as by the Neo-Kantianism. We will discuss the meaning of the third Critique for the contemporary philosophy too.

Course/Module aims:

The purpose of the course is to analyze basic problems of the Critique of Judgment and discuss possible ways for their solution. The course also aims to explain the enormous influence of the third Critique on today's philosophy.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

Upon completion of this course the student will be able to:

- Understand the system of the distinctions, assumptions and arguments which Critique of Judgment contains.
- Clarify the systematic link between three Critiques.
- Explain differences between determinate and reflective judgments as well as between aesthetic and teleological judgments.
- Show the role that the third Critique has played in crystallization of the German Idealism's metaphysics.
- Discern different models of interpretation of the Critique of judgment.
- Demonstrate how the basic concepts of Kant's aesthetics continue to function (although in modified ways) in the contemporary philosophy.
