Course/Module description:

The last few decades have witnessed the emergence of a new phenomenon: armed uprisings led by salafī organizations against the ruling regimes in the Muslim world. What was/is the ideological profile of organizations such as the Fighting Vanguard (Syria, 1980s), the GIA (Algeria, 1990s), and al-Qā'ida and the Islamic State? What are the social, political, and military implications of this ideological profile? How do these organizations differentiate between friends and enemies, and on what grounds? In the course we will examine these topics through selected readings in salafī texts from various war zones.

Course/Module aims:

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

To characterize and analyze salafī texts in their historical contexts, to map conflict zones in terms of competing ideologies, to describe the worldview of the radical salafīs and to explain in what ways their patterns of behavior are conditioned by this worldview.

Attendance requirements(%):

100

Teaching arrangement and method of instruction: Instruction will focus on reading primary sources together in the classroom setting, with guidance from the instructor. Students will be expected to prepare the readings in advance of each class. The instructor's lectures will serve primarily to introduce new topics.

Course/Module Content:

Background: Salafism and al-salafiyya al-jihādiyya
First stirrings: The Fighting Vanguard in Syria and the GIA in Algeria
Afghanistan and the Arab volunteers
Radical Salafism and the Arab Spring
New Divisions: al-Qā'ida and the Islamic State
