Course/Module description:

This course examines the political, social, and economic experience of the Arab minority in Israel from the establishment of the State up until recent years. It addresses the relationship between the State and the Arab community and the distinctive internal dynamics of Arab society, including the religious groupings, changes in the family structure, gender issues, economic developments, the education system, the media, and social tensions and fractures.

Course/Module aims:

- 1) To give Israeli students a deeper knowledge of Arab society in Israel. Furthermore, the course provides a general and historical overview on Arab population in Jerusalem.*
- 2) To develop students' pedagogic ability in Arabic through reading texts and class discussion.*
- 3) To equip the students with technical and cognitive skills to help them as Arabic teachers in Israeli schools.*
- 4) To encourage them to think critically about issues that carry political connotations, such as the subject of the course.*

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- 1) Factual knowledge regarding Arab society in Israel.*
