Dr. Carola Hilfrich

Course/Module description:

The seminar explores the appearance of ghosts in modern literatures, as well as the possibility to speak of literature as a ghost which appears "to test us, remind us of our responsibility, demand justice" (D. Attridge). In view of the increasing interest in ghostly matters in various fields of knowledge across the humanities and social sciences, including philosophy, sociology, history, political theory, film, gender, and cultural studies, we shall consider the specific contribution of literary imagination to the contemporary study of hauntings. As an articulation of the forgotten, the repressed, and the latent, and as a figure that crosses boundaries of authority, language, culture, class, race, and sexuality, the ghost testifies uneasily to both our living past and our living future. It situates us within a present that is loaded, dense, and "out of joint." Through chosen works of literature we explore the architecture of feeling, thinking, and doing in the haunted house of fiction.

Course/Module aims:

To enable students to use critical and theoretical thought in the analysis of works of modern fiction, by way of a study of "ghostwriting" as metafiction

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- Examine specific works of ghost fiction
- Analyze central elements of ghostwriting with regard to specific historical and social contexts
- Discuss different theoretical approaches to ghostwriting

Attendance requirements(%):

100 %

Teaching arrangement and method of instruction: lectures, close reading, discussion, oral presentations, final or seminar papers
