Course/Module description:

This is an introduction to the great religions of Asia, mainly of India and China, from a thematic and systematic perspective with certain historical emphases.

Course/Module aims:

This course delves into the central ideas and practices that constitute Asian religion, as an example of a primary religious system. These ideas and practices are treated historically, but the main focus of the course is thematic and systematic - the attempt to understand the Asian religions as cultural systems. This raises deep questions about the nature of divinity/ies and the role of human understanding and emotion in the its shaping.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- 1. To understand the phenomenon of religion and its role in human society.*
- 2. To compare the monotheistic and polytheistic world-views and question whether these categories are justified.*
- 3. To better understand God and the human imagination of it.*
