Coordinator Office Hours: Tuesday, 14.15-15.15

Teaching Staff:
  Dr. Carola Hilfrich
Course/Module description:
In this seminar, we will read major short prose works in German literary history and look at their interpretations by filmmakers in late 20th century cinema. We will study the variations between the literary text and the movie based on it, as well as the demands of the conventions of the art form that bring about these variations and the effects that result from the processes of adaptation. We discuss larger questions about the relationships between words and images and textual and visual culture. Texts and films include Kleists and Rohmers Marquise of O, Manns and Viscontis Death in Venice, Schnitzlers Dream Story and Kubricks Eyes Wide Shut.

Course/Module aims:
enable students to critically analyze works of verbal and filmic fiction

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:
- Analyze adaptations of works of German Literature in Film
- Identify and compare basic elements and conventions of verbal and filmic art
- Examine the relationships between words and images, textual and visual culture
- Investigate specific adaptations in the light of theories of filmic adaptation
