Course/Module description:

Hanna Arendt (1906-1975) is one of the great thinkers of the 20th century. An extensive exhibition in the German Historical Museum (Deutsches Historisches Museum) in Berlin was dedicated to her life and work. The catalog for this was published in 2020 under the title "Hannah Arendt and the 20th century". She studied with Martin Heidegger and Edmund Husserl and did her doctorate with Karl Jaspers. In addition to philosophy, she was interested in literature and wrote numerous articles on it. The book about the romantic writer Rahel Varnhagen, planned as a habilitation thesis, was first published in London in 1957 under the title "Rahel Varnhagen, The life of a Jewess" and finally in Germany in 1959 under the title "Rahel Varnhagen. Lebensgeschichte einer deutschen Jüdin". Hannah Arendt's book and the work of Rahel Varnhagen (1771-1833) are assumed as the basis for his lecture. The course reminds the 250th birthday of this extraordinary writer, head of a literary salon and a staunch representative of the Romantic epoch and the European Enlightenment, who continued to advocate Jewish emancipation and equal rights for women. As a part of the Critical Complete Edition by Hannah Arendt, the book about Rahel Varnhagen will appear in full for the first time and will be commented on in 2021.
