Course/Module description:

This course will trace the development of the Egyptian film industry from the 1930s, through the "Golden Age" during the Nasser era, to the rise of gritty urban films in the 1970s. We will also discuss the decline in film production, and the challenges the film industry faces today.

Course/Module aims:

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

1. Develop a critical language for analyzing film, and integrate a variety of approaches to film criticism.
2. Construct a history of Egyptian cinema within the context of political and social developments in Egypt from 1919 to the present.
3. Evaluate the limitations of studying cinema industries as a national enterprise, and identify international influences on Egyptian cinema production, distribution, and consumption.
4. Design and implement an independent research project, and present findings orally and in writing.

Attendance requirements(%):

Class Participation accounts for 30% of final grade

Teaching arrangement and method of instruction: This course is designed as a discussion-based seminar. Students are expected to come prepared to discuss assigned material.
