Course/Module description:

In 1952, West Germany, Israel, and the Jewish Claims Conference signed the groundbreaking Holocaust Reparations Agreement in Luxembourg. Since then, and increasingly after the end of the Cold War, the Luxembourg Agreement has served as a model for addressing past wrongs for both former victims and perpetrators of severe human rights violations. This seminar explores the negotiations that led to the Agreement, the Agreement itself, and the German-Jewish-Israeli relations that emerged from it. Additionally, the seminar examines other case studies of compensation for historical wrongs in Europe since 1945, focusing on both their theoretical and practical aspects.

Course/Module aims:

The aim of the seminar is to examine cases of restitution and compensation for serious human rights abuses in contemporary Europe.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- explain the 1952 Reparations Agreement,
- debate various models of compensation,
- examine case studies of compensation and restitution in European history since 1945,
- incorporate insights from history, political science, international relations, and law into the discussion,
- critically analyze specific primary and secondary sources.
