Coordinator Office Hours: By Appointment

Teaching Staff:

Dr. Yael Levin

Course/Module description:

The course will combine a reading of canonical and popular fiction with psychoanalytic theory and philosophy to explore the intersection between horror and subjectivity. Horror's engagement with liminality will be seen as a path to the study of the concept of the subject and the attending fears of its dissolution.

Course/Module aims:

Students will learn basic psychoanalytic and philosophical methods of conceptualizing subjectivity. They will learn to engage closely with the primary and secondary texts on the syllabus and to draw important conclusions on the method whereby liminality functions as a symbolic exploration of subjectivity.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

Formulate their own methods of engaging with horror - both philosophically and aesthetically.

Discuss the texts from within a psychoanalytic interpretative frame.

Formulate an independent research idea relating to a literary negotiation with the genre.
