Course/Module description:
In the course we will examine various ways in which the past is activated in the present as it is manifested in scholarly practices, museological practices, everyday life culture and folkloristics. Scrutinizing the differences between three concepts - heritage, tradition and nostalgia - we will look into the way the past is activated in the present. Other than active participation and reading, students are required to write a final paper.

Course/Module aims:

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:
To tell the difference between the concepts of heritage, tradition and nostalgia
To identify discourse that makes use in these terms
To criticize the use of these terms
To compare between different ways in which the past is activated in the present
To be able to implement these terms in various cultural contexts
