Teaching Staff:

Dr. Carola Hilfrich

Course/Module description:

In this seminar we study traditional critical theories which understand "culture" in terms of domination/resistance and commodification/ 'authenticity' as well as advanced or more recent approaches which claim a complex texture of innovation, creativity, and restructured power relations. The seminar enables you to discern the implications of different ways to criticize and theorize "culture" for the analysis of specific cultural situations. Special attention is given to studies of the colonial situation and of everyday life and how these studies rework traditional notions of cultural critique/criticism and theory-making.

Course/Module aims:

Enable students to apply critical thought to cultural analysis

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- Combine various paradigms of critical thought
- Critically analyze specific cultural practices, objects, or institutions
- Discuss possibilities and limitations of cultural theory
- Adapt theoretical concepts to specific situations or locations of culture
- Question the relations of cultural theory and praxis/practice
