Course/Module description:

Course description: The course is based on 8 field trips, lectures preceding each field trip and a concluding class meeting. The importance of Jerusalem in the history of the three monotheistic religions has made it one of the most researched cities in the world.

Its geographical location and its religious and political importance have made Jerusalem a city whose history has been interwoven with world history and politics for generations. During the course we will explore the political history of the city from the beginning of the first millennium BC to the beginning of the third millennium AD. The course will rotate with classroom lectures and field trips. Course topics: Jerusalem as the capital of the ancient Jewish kingdom, the conquests of the city and the country by the ancient world powers, the emergence of Christianity and its reign in the Mediterranean basin and Europe, the effects of Muslim, Crusader, Mamluk and Ottoman conquests of the city; In the modern age, we will cover the exit from the walls, the British Mandate period, the wars over Jerusalem in 1948 and 1967, and the political and geographical realities of the 21st century.

Course/Module aims:

To know, understand and watch the development of a city over 3000 years of documented history. This is with the perspective of understanding global and regional politics and their impact on the city and its history.

Learning outcomes - On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:
