תאור כללי של הקורס:

The Glocal Seminar is an annual, compulsory seminar. It will consist of about six sessions per semester. The seminar is meant to be a space and time for students to engage with fundamental concerns in development and to explore a wide variety of questions that arise from the theory and practice in this field. It is a participatory class, where students are encouraged to debate and express their views. Each year, the seminar will be focused on different themes and topics. For the 2018-2019 academic year, the theme will be Ethical Questions in International Development.

The seminar will take place on a bi-weekly basis. Most of the sessions will be conducted by guest lecturers: professionals in the realm of development who will share some of their dilemmas, or scholars who are engaged in research into these issues. The first term will focus more on wider ethical debates and the second term will give students the chance to meet professionals and explore with them ethical and moral practices.

The main themes identified for the seminar will be:

- Ethical questions regarding social change, particularly in light of issues such as foreign interventions, cultural and ethical relativism and the universality of human rights.*
- Ethical work in practice, especially looking at power relations in the field and discussing issues of power abuse, unequal relations between organizations, dignity and others.*

מטרות הקורס:

Main Learning Objectives:

Through the seminar Glocal students are meant to receive a brief introduction to key ethical questions relevant to International Development. The seminar is not meant to provide a detailed comprehensive view but a broad overview. In particular, students are expected to:

- Appreciate the complexity of cross cultural and cross national development*
- Recognize the complexity of power relations in the practice of international development*
